Northern Science Network Created

Milton M.R. Freeman, first recipient of the prestigious Henry Marshall Tory Chair at The University of Alberta, has been named chairman of a newly established Northern Science Network. At a meeting held in Edmonton from 12 to 15 October, representatives of six circumpolar nations agreed to establish the network as a means of facilitating international cooperation in northern science.

The meeting, held under the auspices of the UNESCO Man in the Biosphere Program, decided to commence activity immediately in three theme areas of concern. These themes, and the countries coordinating their activities, are: problems associated with conflicting land use practices in the north (Sweden); developing the scientific and management-related usefulness of Biosphere Reserves and other protected areas (Canada); and studies related to the ecology and use of the extensive birch forests occurring throughout the circumpolar subarctic region (Finland).

The decision to establish the network is the result of a proposal put forward at the 7th Session of the MAB International Co-ordinating Council meeting, held in Paris in September 1981. That proposal, which came from the Canadian delegation, suggested the "establishment of a network for cooperation among peoples engaged in problems peculiar to the circumpolar north." The proposal was adopted, and Canada agreed to organize a meeting to discuss further the establishment of such a northern network.

The purpose of the network is to strengthen scientific activities by the exchange of relevant information and by providing training opportunities, as well as facilitating the creation of knowledge syntheses of an interdisciplinary nature. The network's sphere of involvement will include local residents, managers and decision-makers in the public and private sectors, as well as the international science community.

At the present time member countries in the network are Canada, Finland, Greenland, Norway, Sweden, and the United States. The USSR, unable to attend the Edmonton meeting at the last minute, will also be invited to join. The question of enlarging the membership and scope of activities of the network will be dealt with at later meetings.

Kurt V. Abrahamsson, Professor of Geography at the University of Umea, Sweden, has been named vice-chairman of the network. The Network Secretariat, to be established at our University under Dr. Freeman's direction, will be responsible for ensuring that information on network activities reaches the wider public.

The Northern Science Network is associated with the UNESCO Man in the Biosphere Program, whose purpose is to increase scientific understanding of problems of the human environment by facilitating research, information exchange, and training. □

Fall Convocation a First for Chancellor Savaryn

Fall Convocation, to be held on Saturday, 20 November, at 2 p.m., will be a series of "firsts." It is the first regularly-scheduled Convocation of the 75th Anniversary year; it is the first Convocation for recently-elected Chancellor Peter Savaryn; and it is the first Convocation at which the hand-crafted oaken stand presented to the University as a 75th Anniversary gift by Alberta College will be used by honorary degree recipients.

More than 1,000 degrees will be conferred next Saturday to undergraduate and graduate students representing nearly every Faculty on campus. In addition, the 1982 Alumni Golden Jubilee Award will be presented to Chancellor Emeritus Jean B. Forest. Two honorary degrees will also be conferred, to W. P. Wagner and Andrew Pattullo.

William Philip Wagner has devoted his life to education in the province of Alberta. Born in Edmonton, and holding three degrees from The University of Alberta (BA, BEd, MEd), Mr. Wagner first began teaching in 1916 in the Castle School District near Fort Saskatchewan. After teaching in a number of centres throughout central Alberta, Mr. Wagner joined the Edmonton Public School Board as a teacher at Strathcona High School in 1929. In 1942 he began what was to be a four-year military leave, after which he once again returned to the staff of the EPSB. In 1955 he was appointed Superintendent of the Board, a position which he held until his retirement in 1964, at which time the School Board named W. P. Wagner School in his honor. Mr. Wagner has been described as "one of a very small number of people who have had success in providing Edmonton with first-rate education facilities, first-rate teachers, and a first-rate curriculum."

A native of Omaha, Nebraska, Andrew Pattullo has had a profound influence on the development of educational research activity in the field of health services administration. A graduate of the University of Nebraska (BS 1941) and the University of Chicago (MBA 1942), Mr. Pattullo's career in hospital administration began nearly forty years ago when he joined the W. K. Kellogg Foundation as a Fellow in 1943. At the time of his retirement this summer, Mr. Pattullo was the Senior Vice-President of the Foundation. Actively involved in the creation of graduate level programs in the health services, Mr. Pattullo has made significant contributions to the assurance of high level health services administration in the future.

Mr. Pattullo will deliver the Convocation Address and the Report to Convocation will be given by President Horowitz. □

"Celebrations" to Continue

Four former poets-in-residence at this University will return to campus this weekend to take part in the second of a series of 75th Anniversary "Celebrations" sponsored jointly by the Department of English and the Canadian Studies Program.

Gary Geddes, Tom Wayman, Phyllis Webb, and Patrick Lane will read their poetry, talk with faculty and students, and discuss their craft on Friday, 12 November, and Saturday, 13 November, in the AV Wing of the Humanities Centre.

Gary Geddes was poet-in-residence in 1976-77. Currently teaching at Concordia University in Montreal, he is founder of Quadrant Editions, a publishing house established to "publish worthy but relatively unknown writers on a subscription basis." His sixth, and most recent, volume of verse The Acid Test, recently won the 1982 Canadian Authors Association award for the best book of poetry in Canada.

Tom Wayman is a native of Hawkesbury, Ontario, who grew up in Vancouver, B.C. Poet-in-residence at this University in 1978-79, he is widely recognized as a poet intent on "making contemporary poetry accessible to the people." Currently living in British Columbia. Mr. Wayman will take up a position as writer-in-residence at Simon Fraser University early in the new year.

Phyllis Webb teaches creative writing at the University of Victoria. She was poet-in-residence here in 1980-81, after having worked for CBC "off and on over the past twenty years."

Patrick Lane, the most recent poet-in-residence (1981-82), is now writer-in-residence with the Saskatoon

Public Library. He was the 1978 winner of the Governor General's Award for poetry for Poems New and Selected.

"Celebrations" will begin at noon on Friday, with readings by Pat Lane and Phyllis Webb in L-3 of the Humanities Centre. Following at 1 p.m. will be readings by Tom Wayman and Gary Geddes, also in L-3. A two-hour session of readings by the four guests of "Celebrations" will take place on Friday evening in L-1

Humanities Centre, beginning at 8 p.m. And, on Saturday at 2 p.m. (again in L-1) a panel discussion, "Why Poetry?," will be held. Included in the afternoon session will be a book display, autographings, discussion, and debate.

"Celebrations" is funded by the Alma Mater Fund, Alberta Culture, the Dean of Arts, and the Vice-President (Research). All sessions are free of charge and the public is welcome to attend. □

PACCR Report 3 - Current Status: The Time Problem

The President's Advisory Committee on Campus Reviews (PACCR) is beginning its third year of operation. A new member, Henry Kreisel, has been appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the untimely death of John Forster. Membership in the committee is as follows: Walter Harris, Chairman; Bill Jopling; Fred Enns; Henry Kreisel.

The review process is gathering momentum: it is now under way in the 36th unit. While the process has been totally completed in only eight units, it is nearing completion in a number of others, and is in various stages in the remainder. Experience has cast up a number of operational situations. One of these—the subject of this report—might be termed the "time problem."

Review teams are brought to the campus for short visits—two, three, or possibly four days. A team spends about one-third of its time with the unit under review; one-third with individuals and related units or disciplines; and one-third on its own, reviewing observations, testing tentative findings and conclusions, and preparing a draft outline of its report. The time with the unit is arranged by the unit, and for academic departments student interviews are included. The selection of individuals and groups from related units takes into account the suggestions from the unit, from the dean, and from the internal reviewers as well as from PACCR.

PACCR's experience is that departments usually request as much time as possible with the review team. Because of over-all time limitations, however, this request may not be satisfied completely. It is expected, therefore, that time allocation will continue to be a subject of discussion. The length of time scheduled for the on-campus visit of the review team depends on a number of factors. Size is an obvious one: the larger the unit, the greater the time required for an adequate review. Another is the complexity of the unit's responsibilities and the extent of its relations with other campus units. A third is the quality of the Self-Study Report; a clear, thorough report enables the team to proceed quickly to the central issues. A fourth, though not so obvious as the others, is the difference in understanding and interest between the department and the reviewers. It may take some time to reconcile such differences before productive enquiry can proceed.

A fifth factor is related to the heart of the process—assembling a top-rated review team. Because those nominated are usually highly respected, mature scholars they have many demands on their time. Therefore, they may encounter difficulties in clearing their personal schedules for lengthy review. For two-day reviews, PACCR has had a large measure of success in obtaining the preferred nominees; for longer reviews it becomes increasingly likely that less well qualified candidates will have to be appointed. PACCR has also found that in two-day reviews most members stay for the full time, but in several of the longer ones, one or other of the external members has left early.

PACCR has been able to solve part of the time problem by increasing the efficiency of scheduling the time and activities of the unit review team. □

Loss of Parking Permits Could Lead to Leg Work

W. F. G. Perry, Director, Campus Security and Parking Services, has told Folio that a number of reports have recently been received regarding the loss or theft of parking permits, the cause being that the permits were not properly affixed to the vehicle as is required by the Traffic and Parking Regulations. This information, he pointed out, is clearly provided each recipient when the permit is obtained.

In the view of Mr. Perry, if permits are lost or stolen under circumstances that indicate they were not properly affixed to the window of the vehicle in the first place, consideration will be given to the refusal to replace them which will result in the vehicle operator not having a permit to park on campus. □

The Gerhard and Gerhard Show

The Department of Music recently took delivery of a new 6 stop organ. The organ was built by Gerhard Brunzema of Fergus, Ontario; Gerhard Krapf of the department collaborated with Mr. Brunzema on the specifications.

Mr. Brunzema was already renowned for his work in organ building and restoration when he came to Canada from northern Germany. He was appointed Tonal Director of the Casavant Organ Company in St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, where he worked for some years before opening his own shop.

The Brunzema organ, which is of a type used until the mid-19th century, before the advent of electricity, allows for greater sensitivity of touch, and will serve as an ideal practise instrument for organ students. Built of oiled oak with keys of rosewood and ebony sharps, the design also has practical advantages: at 7' 10" high and 4' 9" wide, it will fit under the average ceiling and pass easily through doorways. Professor Krapf is delighted with the acquisition and says it won't have to be replaced for at least 200 years. □

New Director Appointed To Office Of Community Relations

C.A. (A1) Squibb has been appointed to direct the University's Office of Community Relations effective 15 November 1982. Mr. Squibb comes to the University from F.H. Hayhurst Company Limited where he was Vice-President and General Manager of the communications consultants' Edmonton branch.

Mr. Squibb has had a long and distinguished career in the communications field. Having attended McGill University, he began his association with the advertising world in 1948 as Assistant Advertising Manager for Dominion Textiles Company Limited in Montreal. Remaining in Montreal, Mr. Squibb then held successive positions with Ronalds Advertising Agency, James Lovick and Company Limited, Desbarats Advertising Agency Limited, and Foster Advertising Limited. When he left the last-named agency to come west in 1971, Mr. Squibb held the position of Director, Administration/Services and was responsible for assisting the Vice-President (Eastern Canada), planning and administering a new business program, and directing Sales Promotion and Radio and Television departments.

From late 1971 to early 1977, Mr. Squibb held the position of Branch Manager, Director, and Vice-President of the communications firm of Francis, Williams and Johnson Limited. Here, he engaged in supervision of all projects handled for corporate clients and exercised the responsibilities of a company director.

In 1977, Mr. Squibb left the corporate world to take up an appointment as Assistant Deputy Minister in the Province of Alberta Public Affairs Bureau. This challenging position made him responsible for, among other duties, policy development for the Department of Government Services, directing staff responsible for all Government communications, maintaining liaison with and evaluating advertising agencies and public relations counselling firms in Alberta, and consulting at Deputy Minister and Assistant Deputy levels with all provincial ministries on communications policy and programming. Mr. Squibb returned to the corporate world in 1979, when he accepted a position with F.H. Hayhurst Company Limited.

Mr. Squibb is a professional in the field of public relations and communications consulting. He brings to the Office of Community Relations a diverse and valuable experience that will be of great assistance in helping the University relate ever more effectively to the community it serves.

Chris Simpson, who has served as Acting Director of the Office since February 1982, will become its Assistant Director with various administrative and functional responsibilities.

The Office of Community Relations, located on the fourth floor of Athabasca Hall, is responsible for a wide variety of communication endeavors and programs, from the production of the weekly bulletin Folio, to arranging campus tours and special functions, advertising, and maintaining effective relations with local and national news media. Mr. Squibb, Dr. Simpson, and the staff of Community Relations can be reached at 432-2325. □

This University's burgeoning relationship with Heilongjiang, China, was enhanced recently by a four-day visit by (left to right) Chen Chuanguo, Dean, English Department, Heilongjiang University; Cang Qingji, Deputy President, Northeast Agricultural College; Yang Hui, Deputy Director, Cultural and Educational Office, People's Government of Heilongjiang; Li Deen, Deputy President, Heilongjiang University; and Wang Xiaoming, President, Harbin Medical University. Pictured with the group is Amy Zelmer, Associate Vice-President (Academic) and Chairman of the President's Committee on International Development. Shortly after this visit, the University welcomed representatives of the schools of business of various universities and the Ministry of Education of The People's Republic of China. The trip was coordinated by the International Development Office of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

Tim Scott is Distinguished Visitor in Department of Art and Design

The Department of Art and Design is pleased to announce the presence on campus of sculptor Tim Scott, probably the most influential modernist sculptor of the last two decades after Anthony Caro.

On Friday, 12 November, at 2:30 p.m. in 2-20 Fine Arts he will give a public slide/lecture presentation and discuss his work.

Mr. Scott's educational and professional background combines architecture and sculpture. He has worked at the Atelier Le Corbusier-Wegensky in Paris, the Royal College of Art in London, the Leicester College of Art, the Nottingham Polytechnic, the Canterbury College of Art, and the Newport College of Art, among others.

His forty one-man exhibitions include galleries in London, Oxford, New York, Boston, Washington, Toronto, Regina, Windsor, Edmonton, Hamburg, and Hanover. Public collections in England, Canada, Australia, Germany, and the United States own pieces of his work.

He is particularly well known in North America for his "Bird in Arras," a series of sculptures in which colored plexiglass sheets are dispersed along axes of steel tubing. These sculptures represented a significant development out of Caro's spatial, pictorial sculptures (such as "Early One Morning") in their use of color as an integral compositional element, and in the clear separation of structural elements as a linear counterpoint to the color planes.

There followed a transitional stage in which clear, massively thick plexiglass was opposed to heavy, forged iron bars as in, for instance, Counterpoint III at the Edmonton Art Gallery. Later the plexiglass was dispensed with altogether and he developed a heavy, compressed and almost organic form of steel sculpture in his Mudra series of the mid-'seventies, of which there is also an example at the Edmonton Art Gallery. In recent years he has explored the possibilities of forging in constructed sculpture.

His entire work so far can be seen as an attempt to retain traditional sculptural values such as volume, mass, and structure for cubist derived sculpture.

He is at present Head of Sculpture at St. Martin's School of Art, London, UK □

Otis Tamasauskas, Master Printer and EFF Distinguished Visitor to the Department of Art and Design, gives a critical once-over to a proof stage of his most recent lithograph. Mr. Tamasauskas, who has taught art at both Queen's University and McMaster University, and will teach next year at the University of Toronto, was on campus from 11 to 30 October. Lithography, according to Mr. Tamasauskas, is one of the newest art forms (it was first used in the early 1800s), and will prove to be the medium of the future, he believes. One of three methods of print-making (the others being silkscreening and intaglio), lithography produces prints from a plate most often made of limestone. "One of the most exciting aspects of lithography," says Mr. Tamasauskas, "is that it is never totally predictable. The fascination of lithography is the variability involved as you move from one stage of the creative process to the next." Mr. Tamasauskas, who lives in Priceville, Ontario, and is an active member of Toronto's unique Open Studio, is regarded as one of Canada's leading artist-printmakers.
